

Food

Sunday morning in the city

For those of us who are really passionate about food a new market on the Waterfront is a 'must visit'. Wellington businesspeople, Martin Bosley and Rachel Taulele, have brought together artisan food and beverage producers from around the Wellington region and in doing so have created a passionate food community right in the heart of the city. All of the stallholders have a reputation for producing quality food and beverages, they're all local and enjoy spending time together as well as meeting members of the public who share their passion for fine food. Check out City Market at the atrium, Chaffer's Dock function centre one Sunday morning soon.
